newARTSpace news

De Pere, Wisconsin –

newARTSpace is pleased to announce that they will now be open to coincide with the Definitely De Pere Farmer's Market. Beginning on Thursday, June 9 the gallery will open its doors from 4 – 7 pm each week on Thursdays throughout the summer.

This month newARTSpace is featuring artwork from the archives of artist/owners David Graham and Terri Warpinski in an exhibition titled, From the Vault currently on view in their Sidedoor Gallery. This is the first time they have dug into their crates of stored work to share from their extensive repertoire of past projects.

This debut spotlights Graham's popular and poignant work from Alone Together. The secretive life of a pair of solitary lovers is revealed in this collection of pictures that resound with the beauty of the windswept island they inhabited. Arthur and Nan Kellam left California and their defense industry work just after World War II, establishing a life without "the burden of abundance" on Placentia Island, just off the coast of Maine. Their small cabin was their refuge from civilization—a haven they shared only with each other—and when they left it, their home remained untouched. These intriguing photographs, showing every cup, book, and letter exactly where the Kellams left them, speak of the deep love of two people for each other and for the natural beauty around them.

Warpinski will show a suite of 15 broadsides from the limited-edition portfolio Liminal Matter: Traces. This 2018 collaboration pairs arresting images of the U.S.–Mexico border by photographer Terri Warpinski with responses to the images by poet Laura Winter. Traces focuses the viewer's attention on the people caught in between two nations and those who profit from their plight. These visual and poetic pairings reveal artifacts and other evidence of passage and exclusion, providing insight into the struggles and hope of those in flight.

The Artist Conversation series continues on Saturday, June 18th at 1:00pm when newARTSpace features current exhibiting artists David Graham and Terri Warpinski in conversation about their work on view in From the Vault. The artists will share insights and anecdotes about their projects on exhibit, Alone Together and Liminal Matter: Traces, and answer questions from the audience.

In conjunction with ARTS for ALL Wisconsin, newARTSpace presents Creative Power, an exhibition comprised of award-winning artworks and poetry created by Wisconsin children and adults with disabilities, in the Storefront Gallery. This exhibition will be on display through June 24.

ARTS for ALL Wisconsin works statewide in a variety of ways, including AFA choirs, Artist Residencies, Curated Collections, Creative Power Traveling Exhibition, and a Call for Art that draws submissions from over sixty communities.

Both exhibitions open June 3 for the Definitely De Pere Art Walk, which takes place from 4-8 pm.

Admission to newARTSpace is free and open to the public.
